Editorial
M M Rafi
Editor
NED University Journal of Research

The Editor’s aim has always been to ensure continuous changes in style of the NED University Journal of Research in order to enable it to compete with other reputed international journals. These changes have been appreciated by almost all readers and the Journal was consequently able to attract authors from several countries abroad. One suggestion received from several readers has been to divide this journal into different volumes so as to provide authors opportunities for publication in more focussed areas. This suggestion has been considered by the Advisory Board during its recent meeting; readers would no doubt be happy that from next year onwards each NED University Journal of Research would be published in three volumes. Details about each issue of these volumes shall also be available to all the researchers in our database as well as also available on NED University website.

Format of the present issue of NED University Journal of Research is however unchanged. This issue in hand brings together four original papers (discussion on which would be open until 30th November 2012) selected from areas of Environmental Monitoring, Industrial Engineering, Water Resources Engineering and also Environmental Engineering. It is hoped that these papers would be of interest to most readers.